PREFACE

In 1858, Mr. Joseph Willard, of Boston (Number 313 in this genealogy), brought out a family history entitled "Willard Memoir, or Life and Times of Major Simon Willard: With Notices of Three Generations of His Descendants, and Two Collateral Branches in the United States; Also Some Account of the Family in Europe, from an Early Day."

He wrote very fully and entered into many details, making a book which will always be a treasure to the descendants and to the general students of Colonial History.

The present work, though a sequel to the Memoir, has been constructed upon a different scale; it aims to give a view of the family at large, keeping in due proportion the several branches and individuals of the family, in the common fashion of approved genealogies. It has been necessary to condense and even to omit much that has been found in order to bring the work into the limits of a single volume; but every effort has been made to give the best items and in the fairest manner, so as to make the work a delight and pride to the greatest number. It is much larger than we estimated.

Several esteemed families are omitted because the connection of their lines with the stock of Simon and George could not be substantiated; and many individual records are impossible to place. These are given in the Appendix.

That this genealogy has errors and omissions will be discovered, as in the case of every book whose contents have been gathered from such various and fallible sources. The editor has sometimes had conflicting accounts from members of the same particular family, and has been obliged to arbitrate between them and the public records anent the case. All who have contributed materials have done so in the spirit of kindness and a desire to make real history; we ask patience and consideration from all readers, and suggest that there may be cases where some will think they see errors and by close examination will find that they are learning the facts from the book!

We should like to mention with specifications the correspondents who have contributed valuable material; they are many and have been very helpful, too many to enroll here in suitable fashion. But mention must be made of the part which has been taken by Miss Susanna Willard, daughter of the author of the Memoir, who has had a special interest in promoting this work; as the resident member of the Committee of Publication, she has contributed most generously of her time, service and means, bringing memoranda, clippings and letters, gathered during many years, to help the fulness and value of the genealogy.

To one and all who have contributed to the work the editor places on record his hearty thanks.

THE CONCORD SUBSCRIPTION

Miss Susanna Willard, of the Publication Committee, is the possessor of a priceless document, the Agreement of Concord people in 1653 to pay a yearly contribution to "the college at Cambridge," now Harvard University. She permitted Mr. Henry H. Edes, of Cambridge, to have a copy made for a volume (xii) of the Reports of The Colonial Society of Massachusetts, and now Mr. Edes kindly allows us the use of the photogravure for Willard Genealogy. It shows Major Simon Willard's signature next to that of the pastor, Reverend Peter Bulkley. Mr. Edes also permits us to use the plain English copy which he made of the document and its signatures.

The Committee would extend its thanks to The Colonial Society and Mr. Edes.

WILLARD GENEALOGY

WILLARD ANCESTRY IN ENGLAND

Mr. Joseph Willard, while preparing the "Memoir," caused much investigation to be made to discover the early history of the family. Hon. John Dwight Willard joined in the search and they together accomplished much. The famous genealogist, Mr. Henry FitzGilbert Waters, voluntarily carried the matter still further, and as a result we have three generations positively proven before the American pioneers, Simon, George and Margery. The name is a very ancient one in Sussex and Kent, particularly, and the Memoir gives various notes about persons of the name from Walter Willard in 1208 and William Willard, a provost of the city of Canterbury in 1218, down to the seventeenth century. The name was spelled with all the old English variety of spelling, as Wilard, Willard, Wyllarde, Wellarde, Wyllerde, etc. The social standing and occupations of the men were "yeoman, clothmaker, husbandman," etc. The coat of arms presented in the Memoir is one that was used by one of the Willard families of England after the settlement of New England, and may have come down to them from some ancestor who was also an ancestor of the American pioneers. There is no record of the granting of any coat of arms to either of the persons known to be ancestors of the American family; but the coat is a pleasant memorial of English origin and relationship.

I. Richard Willard, of Brenchley, yeoman, made his will September 18, 1558, and it was proved October 24, following. He names sons Robert, Alexander, George, Richard, Andrew, Symon, Thomas and William, and daughters Alice and Agnes.

See notes upon this will on page 63 of the Memoir. Mr. Waters (page xiv) believes this Richard was grandfather, not father, of III, Richard Willard. He quotes a will of Andrew Willard in 1562 who mentions brothers William and George and sons Thomas and Richard, tokens that he was one of the sons of Richard above. Then he gives an abstract of the will of

II. Symon Willarde, of Gowthurst, co. Kent, yeoman, February 6, proved February 26, 1584; wife Elizabeth, sons Thomas and Richard, daughters Thomasine and one who had married Mr. Bolde and had children; a messuage in Horsemonden, purchased of Richard Everenden, etc.

Elizabeth, widow of Symon Willard, buried at Horsemonden April 12, 1587, appears to be the wife mentioned in this will. The towns of Goudhurst, Brenchley and Horsemonden adjoin and a man often held lands in two or all three of the townships. This makes it a probability amounting almost to certainty that Symon's son Richard is the

III. Richard Willard, of Horsemonden,* co. Kent, yeoman, who made his will February 12, 1616, which was proved before Edward Pope, vicar general, March 8, 1616. He bequeathed to the poor of Horsemonden, to his wife Joan, to her son Francis Morebread; to his son George Willard six silver spoons and a silver and gilt cup, to be delivered to him after his mother's death; to his four daughters, Mary, Elizabeth, Margery and Catherine, his household stuff excepting that bequeathed to his wife; to his son Richard Wyllard the income from

* HORSEMONDEN is a small parish in the Weald of Kent; it is described in Edmund Hasted's six-volume "History of the County of Kent," published in 1798, Vol. V, pp. 280, 281, 310-322. W. H. Ireland, in his four-volume "New and Complete History of the County of Kent," London, 1829, also writes about the parish in Vol. III, pp. 236-239. Both these authors spell the name of the place Horsemonden. Furley, however, in his "History of the Weald of Kent," Ashford, 1874, spells it Horsmonden, as the people of the parish commonly do today; yet he gives the meaning of the word "Horseman's Valley."

certain lands; to his daughter Elizabeth a sum of money; to his kinsman Thomas Bolde some woodland; refers to his late brother Thomas Willarde, his brothers-in-law Thomas Humferie and Robert Goure and his son-in-law John Tyboull; to his daughters Margerie and Catherin a barn, close, gardens and orchard which he bought of Wood; to his son Symon Willard all the rest of his messuages and lands when he shall come to age; directs that Symon be placed with some honest man where he may learn some good trade and be instructed; gave to son Richard Willard land purchased of Evenden and Paynter; and in case of Symon's death before reaching maturity, George was to have the lands bequeathed to him.

John Tyboull was appointed executor and was to sell certain estate and apply the proceeds toward the payment of debts and "the virtuous bringing up of his children."

The full text of this interesting document is given on pages 53 to 58 of the Memoir.

The registers of the parish of Horsemonden give us the baptisms of part of the children of Richard Willard; Margery, who married Dolor Davis* and came to New England, was baptized November 6, 1602; Simon, April 7, 1605; and George, December 4, 1614. No records there tell of the marriage of either of these sons; the tradition that Simon's first wife was Mary Sharpe leads to an interest in the baptism of Mary, daughter of Henry and Jane (Feylde) Sharp, October 16, 1614, in the parish where Simon was born.

* At East Farleigh, Kent, Mar. 29, 1624.

FIRST GENERATION

1. Major Simon[1] Willard, elder of the two brothers who founded the American Willard Family, was born at Horsmonden in the county of Kent, England, and baptized in the parish church there April 7, 1605.

There is no record of his life there. His father, as we have seen, provided that he should be apprenticed to learn some trade or business, which was probably done; but his deeds and other documents on record do not specify any calling. It is probable that he had served in the army before coming hither, as he was appointed to drill soldiers here very soon after his arrival and called "a Kentish soldier" by a contemporary historian, Mr. Edward Johnson. He would seem to have married in England, but no record of the wedding has been found, nor of the birth of any child there. Rev. John Willard, D.D. (Number 131 post) in his manuscript history of the family, states with no quotation of authority that Major Willard married in England Mary Sharpe; Mr. Joseph Willard, in the Memoir, has worked out her history as daughter of Henry and Jane (Feylde) Sharpe, of Horsmonden, baptized October 16, 1614; that she came with him to this country and was the mother of at least one child before coming and several afterwards; that he married second Elizabeth Dunster, a sister of President Henry Dunster, of Harvard College, who died within a year, and that he married third Mary Dunster, cousin of Elizabeth, who survived him. Mr. Joseph Willard, in his Memoir, repeats and endorses this record in general, and quotes from a letter written to President Dunster by his father regarding the Dunster family. He also refers to President Dunster's will, dated February 18, 1658-9, in which he gave a legacy to "my sister Willard and her children," and another to "my sister Hills and her children born in this country." At that date Mary was the wife of Major Willard, his third wife whom Rev. Dr. John Willard described as a cousin of the second wife, Elizabeth, sister of President Dunster. It has been reasonably suggested that President Dunster used the word "sister" because she had taken the position formerly occupied by his sister, and was the spouse of one whom he undoubtedly called "Brother Willard." Examination of the registers of the parish of Bury, Lancashire, England, now printed, shows the Dunsters somewhat numerous; we find the family of Henry, father of the President, and his other children, Robert, Richard, Thomas, Elizabeth and Alice, proving, by the names mentioned in the letter mentioned above, the identity of the family. Further, these registers reveal Mary Dunster, daughter of Robert and Mary (Gerrett) Dunster, baptized at Bury, December 15, 1630 — who must have been the third wife of Major Simon Willard. (N. B.— The word "cousin" was used in that day to designate a nephew or niece as well as the child of an uncle or aunt.) Nowhere in the Bury register does the name of any Helen or Ellen Dunster appear, to fill the requirements of Joseph Hills' wife whom President Dunster called "sister." She was married in Massachusetts as "Helen Atkinson," and what President Dunster said when bequeathing to "her children born in this country" implies that she had been a mother before coming hither. Whether she was a sister of President Dunster or his wife or connected with them by some other means does not appear. But the Willard family are not concerned, inasmuch as the parentage of the wife of Major Simon Willard is made entirely clear. It would be extremely gratifying if some similar chain of evidence could be found to demonstrate the parentage and marriage of the first wife, known to have been a "Mary," but only asserted to have been Sharpe. It is fair to say here that there is no mention in those Bury registers of any Dorothy Dunster, whom some have claimed as the bride of Major Willard's brother George. Faith Dunster was recorded, who came hither and married John Page, of Groton.

Major Simon Willard came to this country in the spring of 1634. This is proved by the testimony of Mrs. Elizabeth Bacon, of Hartford, Conn., who testified in court there that she "arrived in New England in the month of May, 1634," and that "Mr. Willard and others of good account were passengers in the same ship." This does not tell us whether he brought with him any of his family or not; it is simply inferred from his after history that his wife and at least one child were with him; and it has also been thought probable that his brother George Willard came at that time; but there is no proof of these points.

We know, however, that on the fourth of August, 1634, "Symon Willard" had a grant of land at Cambridge, where he resided for a year; and that then, August 25, 1635, he sold that property and joined others in founding the plantation to which they gave the beautiful name of Con-cord (not conquered [conkerd] as it is often pronounced), home of agreeing men.

They bought their lands of the Indians in 1636 and maintained good relations with them for long years. Major Willard was chosen representative to the General Court by the Concord freemen at their first election, in 1636; was appointed to train the military company at once; continued in the General Court, performing eminent services on committees and other ways; was particularly successful as a member, usually chairman, of committees to whom were referred controversies between towns and certain groups of inhabitants, and questions about boundaries between towns; he was in request for the laying out of grants of land and one of the commissioners who had supervision of the proceedings of Lancaster and some other towns in critical emergencies. He was a magistrate, chosen one of the "Assistants," judges of the General Court, in 1654, and deputed to hold court in Hampton and Salisbury in 1666 and in Dover and York in 1675.

He was chosen "Sergeant major" of Middlesex County in 1653; was commander-in-chief of the Narragansett expedition in 1654 and 1655. On the breaking out of the Indian horror known as "King Philip's War," in 1675, he performed valiant service.

In 1659 he sold his Concord homestead and removed to Lancaster; after some twelve years he again removed to Groton and built a house and other buildings, and enjoyed much in the fourth home he had made in Massachusetts. But in the progress of King Philip's War the town of Groton was attacked, and the savages burned Major Willard's house in March, 1675-6, so that he had uncertain dwelling-places for himself and his family from that time forward. But he went on in his service, directing the movements of troops and relief expeditions, and bearing untold hardships and strain. This in his seventy-first year, too.

The following month he was at Charlestown, probably resting awhile from his tremendous labors, when he was seized with an "epidemic cold" and died April 24, 1676, having just passed his seventy-first birthday. He was probably buried there.

The "Memoir" gives in a very full fashion most interesting particulars of all the events of his long life, on which this article merely touches. No will was offered for probate and probably none was made. An inventory of the large estate was filed a year later. The widow struggled to care for the younger children and had a difficult problem; for while the Major had left great landed possessions there was very little ready money. Her second marriage probably lightened her labors, and the children became self-supporting in due time. She was married July 14, 1680, to Dea. Joseph Noyes, of Sudbury, and died December 28, 1715, 85 years of age.

By his first and third wives, it is believed, Major Willard had seventeen children. The town clerks failed to record the death of either the first or second wife or the marriage of either the second or third. Rev. Dr. John Willard's manuscript fails to tell which wife was mother of his own grandfather or of any other child of Major Willard. "Child of Simon and Mary," the phrase of the clerks, does not tell us which Mary. After the death of Major Willard the widow Mary petitioned to the court for help, speaking of the special need of "six of her younger children," which may imply that she was mother of more than six.

2. GEORGE[1] WILLARD, younger brother of Major Simon Willard, born at Horsmonden, Kent, England, baptized December 4, 1614; came to New England as early as the year 1638, and perhaps at the same time as his older brother, i.e., in 1634. We find no record of him anywhere in the colony till the winter of 1638-9, when he was one of the citizens of Scituate, in Plymouth colony, who took the oath of allegiance, on the first day of February. That plantation was chiefly composed of men from Kent and their minister in the beginning was Rev. John Lothrop, who had been settled at Egerton in Kent, and, with his church, persecuted because they worshiped and lived in the manner taught in the New Testament. Before the date at which we find George Willard there the minister and part of the church had removed to found a new town — Barnstable, and Rev. Charles Chauncy was pastor at Scituate, one who taught that infants should be immersed when christened, a point which greatly stirred the community. Perhaps this was the cause of the trouble into which Mr. Willard got, for we find that he was called before the court May 3, 1641, and bound over to appear at the next term to answer for "contemptuous words." His brother-in-law, Dolor Davis, was one of his bondsmen. The indictment ran that it was proved by the oaths of witnesses that he had said that "they were fools and knaves that paid the rate" (the taxes); that "the churches here and in the Bay (Massachusetts) did wrong in not baptizing their children"; that "the Assistants (judges) did not take the oath of supremacy before entering upon their places," etc. The charges against Mr. Willard were not pushed;

he was released from his bonds and all went well. But soon a new church was formed in the town and a minister called who proved to be free from special notions and gathered a church of congenial spirits; a Congregational church in faith and practice, as the first church had been, but a fellowship of some who had not been happy in the first parish. Into this new congregation Mr. George Willard entered, and it would appear from the prominence of his name in its baptismal records that he was one of the most active members.

"Baptisms in the Second Church of Scituate by the minister, William Wetherell, since his election into office in Septembre: 1645:
Anno: 1645.

Sarah y^e^ daughter of Will Wetherell
Hopestill y^e^ sonn of Elisha Besby
Thomas y^e^ sonne of Thomas King } Septbre y^e^ 7

Deborah y^e^ daughter
Daniel y^e^ sonn } of George Willard } Sept. 14
Hannah y^e^ daughter of Will Brook

Joseph, Benjamin, Thomas, sonns of Robt Studson: Oct. 5.
Joshua y^e^ sonn of Geo: Willard Novemb. 2"

The two children baptized September 14 were probably all that the Willard family then had. Joshua, baptized in November, was doubtless newly born when christened. No mention of any other child occurs.

The town records do not mention George Willard or any of his family; nor does any contemporaneous record yet found give the name of his wife, mother of these children. Nor does any mention of him show itself in any Massachusetts records besides those quoted above.

But in Maryland, home of real Christian liberty at that day, the man is found. One who was so free in expressing his opinions would be glad to join in such a colony; the business openings there were good; and communication by ship was easy.

In the Land Records of Maryland, book A, B & H, there are entered the applications made by settlers for lands in accordance with the terms adopted by Lord

Baltimore. There was first a "demand" with the reason for the same; then a "warrant" or grant, and then a certificate of the survey of the land with bounds and metes.

"Jan: 9th 1652 George Willard Demandeth Two Hundred Acres of Land for Transporting himself and Samuell and Daniell his Sons and John Rele his Servant into this province this present Month."

"Warr^{t} to lay out for George Willard two hundred Acres Lying above the back Creek between Harris' Land and Cap^{t}. Cornwalleys on the South side of patuxent River not formerly taken up and this is your Warrant.

In the Rent Roll book, 1650 to 1723 (of which two copies exist, one in the Land Office at Annapolis and the other, Lord Baltimore's personal copy, now owned by the Maryland Historical Society at Baltimore) the surname of the grantor is misspelled and his Christian name changed by a copyist to "Jn°." But the facts are stated correctly and the amount of the annual rent paid to the liege lord is given.

"Prince George's County
Rent Roll 1707
Mattapony Hundred.

"Willerd's purchase. Surveyed 17th Augst. 1653 for Jn°. Willard [George Willard] on y^{e} West side Patuxent River next adjoyning to the land of James Godsgrace . pos^{t} Gab. Burnham. 200 acres, Yr. Rent 4s."

"Willard's Purchase" was in the present town of Nottingham, Md. It was possessed, as this record shows, by Gabriel Burnham in 1707. It was first in Charles County, then fell within the bounds of Prince George's County when that was formed. (See article on Daniel, No. 12.)

Only one deed of the "planter" is on record, a bill of sale of a cow, as printed in Maryland records:

"These presents witness that I George Willard planter in Patuxet doe hereby alienate assign and make over unto Arther Wright planter of the same county one black Cow with a red calfe by her side with the said cow marked with a hole in the right eare and the hole splitt out and the left eare whole with all and under the belly white, To have and to hold the said cow and calfe with all her future increase to him the said Arther Wright his executors administrators or assigns without ant let trouble or molestation of me the said George Willard executors administrators or assigns and from all person or persons whatsoever Shall hereby Warrant and defend the same and to make good the sale. Witness my hand this 12 July in the year of our Lord God 1653. George Willarde

Teste John Hamilton
Jno. Kale.

This same black Cow hath a bob tayle and white upon the Rump."

The records of Maryland have been searched in vain for any other token of our man till after his decease. Then the Probate Records have the following in the annals of the year 1656:

"Whereas George Willard deceased is indebted by Account unto William Stevens the summe of one hundred pounds of Tob. [tobacco] It is ordered that the said debt be satisfied out of the estate of the said Geo: Willard deceased."

This account of Mr. George Willard has been based upon the editor's personal investigations in Massachusetts and Maryland records and the libraries and collections of Boston and Baltimore. It is disappointing that no more facts have come to light; but a few facts are better than many fancies.

However, at Yarmouth on Cape Cod in Massachusetts, there appeared some years later two children of this man, who were identified as cousins of the Concord family by Rev. John Willard when he was teaching school there later, and came in contact with the children of one of them; that they came thither from Maryland was asserted; so that the evidence is complete. Then the appearance of Jacob Willard, the army surgeon in King Philip's War, tallies with the other records and gives cause for the hypothesis that he was another son of Mr. George Willard. The particulars will be given later.

Children:

i. Deborah[2], bapt. at Scituate Sept. 14, 1645; came from Maryland to Yarmouth, Mass., and m. Paul Sears, son of the founder of the Sears family of Massachusetts; she was thus ancestor of a great number of distinguished men and women in the Sears and related names. But the defective records of the town of Yarmouth fail to give either the record of her marriage or the birth-dates of her children.

12. ii. Daniel, bapt. at Scituate with Deborah, Sept. 14, 1645; came from Maryland to Yarmouth, Mass.

iii. Joshua, bapt. at Scituate Nov. 2, 1645. No further record found.

14. iv. Jacob, b. about 1650; believed to have been a son of Mr. George Willard.

v. Samuel, mentioned in Maryland land record. No other reference to him found. In the careless writing of those early recorders (who wrote "Jn°" for George, as we have seen) perhaps "Samuel" was a clerical error for Jacob.

SECOND GENERATION

3. JOSIAH[2] WILLARD (Simon[1]), born at Concord, it is believed, and about the year 1635; married March 20, 1656-7, Hannah, daughter of Thomas Hosmer, of Hartford, Conn. She survived him and married second Mr. Malby; as is shown by the clause in her father's will, "I bequeath to my daughter Hannah Malby the reversion of Josiah Willard's estate which I hold."

Mr. Willard resided some years at Hartford, Conn.; removed about 1662 to Wethersfield, Conn., where he kept school for many years. He died in 1674.

4. REV. SAMUEL[2] WILLARD (Simon[1]), born at Concord January 31, 1639-1640; married first, August 8, 1664, Abigail, daughter of Rev. John and Mary (Launce) Sherman, of Watertown, born February 3, 1647, by whom he had six children. She died and he married second, about the year 1679, Eunice, daughter of Edward and Mary Tyng, born at Boston March 8, 1655, died January 14, 1720.

He entered Harvard College "17-5-55," that is, the 17th day of July, 1655. The college books show that his "tuition, study, rents & bed-making" were thirteen shillings and seven pence a quarter (about $3.38) and were paid in wheat, veal, lamb, hens, eggs, a small cow, malt, silver, etc., delivered in Cambridge by "Willyam Browne of Sudbury," "Captaine Mason of Watertown," and various other friends of the family who happened to be journeying that way. Modern express and parcel post had not then been developed.

He graduated in 1659, receiving the degree of M.A., the only one of his class to receive more than the regular A.B. He was preaching at Groton in 1663, and a church was organized there and he was ordained minister July 13, 1664. He continued in the work for a dozen years, then the Indians "broke up the town" and scattered the inhabitants in 1676, and he was compelled to seek a new residence and field. It seems probable that he was a short time at Charlestown at the time of his father's death. At length he was invited by the Old South Church, Boston, to be colleague to their pastor, Rev. Thomas Thatcher. He was installed March 31, 1678, and Mr. Thatcher's death in October following gave him the whole burden of the parish. He distinguished himself by "learning and great fluency of speech" (Dunton), and was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Pemberton to have been "a great man, a profound divine, a very considerable scholar and a heavenly Christian." He was faithful to his church duties and also accepted the honor and work pressed upon him of the presidency of Harvard College. He had to make the journey to Cambridge (eight miles by road then) and spend about the amount of two days a week in thronging labors in the college; then return to resume his home cares with additional matters which had arisen while he was away. The strain was too much for him and he died at what was premature old age. Meantime he wrote fifty-one works, great and small, many reprints of sermons on striking themes. His chief work was the folio volume whose title describes it:

"A Compleat Body Of Divinity in Two Hundred and Fifty Expository Sections on The Assembly's Shorter Catechism Wherein The Doctrines of The Christian Religion are unfolded, their Truth confirmed, their Excellence display'd, their Usefulness improved, Contrary Errors & Vices refuted and expos'd, Objections answer'd, Controversies settled, Cases of Conscience resolv'd, and a great Light thereby reflected on the present age."

Five hundred subscribers welcomed this work in 1726, nearly twenty years after the author's death, which shows the high esteem in which he was held.

He took high ground against the hysterical and contemptible revival here of the old-world furore against "witches"; and it was consistent with his position that he was asked by Judge Sewall (who had been one of the judges that sent innocent persons to death and afterward repented and wrote a full confession) to read that confession while the judge stood, bowed and penitent.

Among the children whom President Willard baptized was one destined to have a very important part in the development of this nation — Benjamin Franklin. Many were the children and youth whose characters were shaped by the teaching and example of the pastor and president of the college.

His death was caused by the nerve strain and prostration which followed the cutting of his finger while eating oysters. So, lamented and honored, exhausted by overcare and mental labor, he died September 12, 1707, at the age of 67 years, 7 months and 12 days.

9. JOSEPH[2] WILLARD (Simon[1]), born at Lancaster January 4, 1660-1; married a wife whose name has not come to light, by whom he had at least one child, the sole survivor at date given below; lived at London and was a mariner, i.e., sea captain. He died before June 23, 1721.

He was a carpenter or housewright. He and his eldest son and two of his sons-in-law bought a tract of land of which we give an abstract of the deed:

"Benjamin Willard, housewright, Joseph Willard, webster, and Thomas Pratt, Junr. husbandman, all of Framingham, and Nehemiah How of Sudbury, bought of the heirs of Benjamin Thompson, schoolmaster, October 14, 1716, 300 acres of land in the wilderness, etc., called Collett's farm." (Suff. Co. Deeds, 37, 250.)

11. JONATHAN[2] WILLARD (Simon[1]), born at Lancaster December 14, 1669; married January 8, 1690-1, Mary, daughter of Major Thomas and Patience (Foster) Brown, born November 25, 1668.

He was a blacksmith. He lived at Roxbury and at Sudbury. Residing in Sudbury he and his wife Mary sold land in Roxbury which he had formerly bought of John Weld, September 2, 1695. He died in 1705. His brother Daniel administered on the estate, giving bond December 10, 1705. Mrs. Mary Willard died at Boston, June 21, 1720.

Children:

40. i. Jonathan[3], b. at Roxbury June 27, 1693.
ii. Mary.
iii. Hannah, living in 1718, when the heirs of Major Willard quitclaimed their rights in the Rutland township; she was then living at Boston.
iv. Hepsibah.

12. DANIEL[2] WILLARD (George[1]), born at Scituate, baptized with sister Deborah, September 14, 1645; married at Yarmouth June 10, 1695, Esther, daughter of James Matthews, born there January 8, 1650-1, died June 28, 1726. She survived her husband and received a bequest of 20 shillings from Thomas Tolland, November 3, 1721.

Daniel was but a lad when he was taken by his father to Maryland. He remained there certainly till after his maturity, but the only trace of his life there is the following deed:

"Daniel Willard, of Willard's purchase, heyre of George Willard, late of patuxent River deceased," sold to Thomas Hatton for 1700 lbs. of tobacco, Nov. 8, 1672, 200 acres of land called Willard's purchase. [Annapolis, Md., Land Records, Charles Co.]

As Daniel must have been at least fifty years old at the date of his marriage to Esther Matthews, it has been inferred that he may have married previously and perhaps had children, but none appeared at Yarmouth. Rev. John Willard, D.D., who lived some time at Yarmouth and knew people who had been acquainted with Daniel Willard, stated that "he left no descendants," which seems to the present writer conclusive.

He died at Yarmouth April 20, 1712.

14. JACOB[2] WILLARD (George[1]), born, as we believe, about the year 1650; married at Watertown October 23, 1677, Mary, daughter of Anthony and Grace (Hall) White, born there March 1, 1650. Her father made a bequest to her in his will in 1686: "I give to my daughter Mary Willard 5 shil[lings] in mony (having laid) out for her before 30 or 40 pounds already."

No documentary evidence of the parentage or birthplace of Jacob Willard has been found. Mr. Joseph Willard, in the "Memoir" gave to Jacob's descendants, "The Newton Willards," a separate place, not having found reason to connect them with the family of Major Simon Willard. But there is a chain of probabilities which have led the editor to place Jacob and his descendants here. His age corresponds with that of George's children. The utter lack of any trace or suggestion of his origin elsewhere; the mental qualities which led him to become a "chirurgeon," or surgeon; the residence near by the Major's family, and the strong and persistent tradition of the progeny of Jacob that he was a scion of the Horsmonden stock — all these constitute probable evidence that has led the present writer to place Jacob as a son of George.

Little is known of Jacob. He appears as "Jacob Willer" in the rolls of three several companies of soldiers in King Philip's War, and in one roll is termed "chirurgion," that is, surgeon. He was in Captain Mosely's Company December 10, 1675, with a credit of £13-11 for pay. In Capt. Samuel Appleton's Company June 24, 1676, with a credit of £15. and the title "chirurgion." And in Captain Henchman's Company September 23, 1676, credited with £12-5-8. As the companies were called out only for short terms he could enter one after the other and so be in almost continuous service. Another mention of the man occurs in the accounts of "Chelmsford-Towne," which was credited "By sundry acceptances," namely, "Jacob Willer per Jerathmeel Bowers, £02-15." The exact meaning of this entry is not clear, but as Jerathmeel Bowers was a son of one of George Willard's neighbors at Scituate whence he removed to Cambridge, and was about Jacob Willard's age, some suggestions of interest arise.

Jacob Willard's marriage took place soon after the close of the war. Then no further record of the man is found. Jonathan's birth is not on record, but his claim for the share which fell to his father in the township set apart for the soldiers, put in definitely — "Jonathan Willard, of Newton, in the right of his father Jacob"— makes the relationship clear and the name indisputable. Bodge, historian of King Philip's War, calls him "Dr. Jacob Willard of Newton."

It would seem that he must have died very soon after the birth of Jonathan, or in the latter part of the year 1678, and that he had no other offspring.

He was a "mariner," or sea captain, as his father had been. He came to Boston after his father's death, and sold the share in Rutland township which fell to his father and to him as "son and heir," one half to Thomas Fairweather, of Boston, merchant, June 23, 1721; the other half to Estes Hatch, of Boston, May 25, 1723. Hatch sold the land in 1733, saying it was the tract he bought of "John Willard, late of Boston, mariner." No further account has been found. It would be very pleasant for the American descendants of Major Simon Willard to know if scions of the same stock had sprung from this "mariner" in the old country.

JOSEPH[3] WILLARD (Benjamin[2], Simon[1]), born at Sudbury, May 27, 1693; married at Framingham, January 5, 1715, Martha, daughter of Captain Isaac Clarke, of Framingham; she died in 1794, "aged 100 years"; her descendants at that time were twelve children, ninety grandchildren, two hundred and six great grandchildren and forty-five of the fifth generation, making a total of three hundred and fifty-three.

He learned the trade of "webster," one of the crafts which combined in the hand-making and selling of cloth in those days, and from which a group of family names have come: shearer, carder, spinner or spinster, weaver, webster, tucker, shearman, fuller, dyer, clothier, chapman or chipman, and mercer or merchant.

He was one of the early settlers of Hassinamisco or Grafton, his daughter Sarah being the first white child born there. He was a town officer; a major in the Worcester regiment; was faithful in church and highly esteemed. He died October 18, 1774.

In order to be freed from taxation to support the ministry of the Congregational Church, which was practically the "established church," he did what some others in Massachusetts did at that period, filed a certificate of his membership in what might be called a non-conformist church; and had it recorded in the town book, Boston, November, 1751.

"This is to certify that Mr. Jonathan Willard, of Newton, is a member of the Baptist church in Boston.

52a. SAMUEL[4] WILLARD (Simon[3], Samuel[2], Simon[1]), born at Boston, January 19, 1702-3; baptized with his twin sister Abigail, January 24, 1703; married at York, Me., December 15, 1732, Mary, daughter of Jonadab Lord, who died about 1740. He married second, Dorothy, daughter of Richard Rogers, of York, who died December 5, 1788.

He was a cordwainer by trade and was several times elected by the town one of the "sealers of leather." He received a gift of nine acres of land with house, barn and improvements, from the father of his first wife, Jonadab Lord, April 6, 1743. He sold the place January 16, 1760. He bought land and a share in a mill at the adjacent town of Phillipstown, afterwards incorporated as Sanford, Me., and settled there. He spent a short time at Belmont, N. H., and there a daughter was born, but the stay was not long. He was a useful citizen and lived to a good old age. He died at Sanford, December 12, 1792, "aged 90 years," as reported by the family.

He left no documentary record or statement as to his origin; but in our survey of the Willard family at that period we find only one Samuel of the right age, and he was so situated that the history of this man follows naturally. One fact is of great interest, namely, that Rev. Samuel Willard, minister at Biddeford, Me., from 1730 till his death, was a cousin of the Samuel, born at Boston in 1702, and as this Samuel had been left an orphan at an early age and had his way to make he would naturally like to settle near one so near akin and of such excellent standing. He had somewhere learned his trade, and a single entry of his name by the town clerk seems to imply that he had been associated with the Winchell family; but this has not been explored fully. While the ancestral connection is not absolutely proved by documents the probability is so large that one of the members of the Publishing Committee and the editor have come to believe thoroughly in the pedigree assigned, and feel that it would not be good history to omit it. So we believe the descendants of this man, Samuel Willard, of York and Sanford, Me., are descendants of Major Simon Willard through his second son, the Rev. Samuel Willard and his son Simon, of Boston.

130. PELEG[5] WILLARD (Nathan[4], Thomas[3], Josiah[2], Simon[1]), born at Guilford, Conn., April 5, 1743; married Hannah ———.

He removed in childhood with his father and the family to the adjacent town of Killingworth. His father conveyed a tract of land to him December 31, 1762; part of this he sold to his brother Elisha September 21, 1765, and another tract to Gideon Carter October 3, 1798. In a document on record in Killingworth April 29, 1807, he is mentioned as "late of Killingworth, deceased." Neither the date of his marriage nor that of his death are yet found on record.

He removed to Cape Elizabeth, Me., and resided there several years, including the period of the Revolution. There he had a child born who grew up and raised a family whose descendants are numerous in the town and neighborhood; another child (as believed) married and had children there; and a third child was born and left behind when the father went back to Connecticut. The records of the town of Cape Elizabeth show these facts.

The archives of Massachusetts (of which Maine then formed a part) give the following:

"Peleg Willard, of Cape Elizabeth, enlisted May 20, 1775, in Capt. Samuel Dennis' company, Col. Edmund Phinney's regiment; also, residing at Cape Elizabeth, he enlisted for the town of Salisbury in Capt. Smith's company, Col. Vose's regiment; also credited to the towns of Wrentham and Franklin; also reported at Valley Forge in December, 1777; also on pay roll of Capt. George Smith's company, Col. Vose's regiment."

There was no other "Peleg Willard" in the country at that period.

He had a house in Cape Elizabeth, which he disposed of to the town. It would seem probable that he went back and forth between the town of his early residence, where his deeds always mention him as a resident, and the town of Cape Elizabeth; and his death may have occurred on one of his journeys, perhaps as a seaman, for there was much trade between the Connecticut coast and that of Maine.

The silence of the records regarding his wife may indicate that she died when her youngest child was small and that the father failed to return after that period.

One of the articles in the warrant for town meeting at Cape Elizabeth January 22, 1781,

"To see if the town will Receive & Allow Francis Maxwell's Acco^{t} for keeping Peleg Willard's child."

April 2, 1781,

"Voted Mr. Francis Maxwell £15-12-0 for maintaining Joseph Willard a poore child & the said Maxwell then said to the town he would maintain said child for the future."

The fact that Willard was a soldier explains the readiness of the town to provide for his child; the paper currency of the country in which the soldiers had been paid off had depreciated till it took five dollars to buy a pair of boots and ten dollars for a shirt, as the town records show; and those who had borne the brunt of the defence of the country were reduced to great straits.

Voted in town meeting April 13, 1779,

"That the house which Peleg Willard sold to this town be appropriated for a Work house for the poor of said town."

Against many practical difficulties and contributing considerable of the money for materials and workmen's wages, he made the scheme successful. Amos Lawrence said, "Posterity ought to know that they are indebted more to Solomon Willard than to any other person for this monument." He refused all compensation for his services, which extended from 1824 to its completion in 1841. He d. unm. Feb. 27, 1861.

He was graduated at Harvard College in 1765. He was one of the four "tutors" (really assistant professors) for six years after graduation. Meantime he pursued his studies for the ministry. He was then ordained pastor of the church in Beverly, and filled the position acceptably for nine years. During that time a large and rather fine library which had been captured by a privateer in the Irish Channel was brought to Salem (close by Beverly) and offered for sale. Mr. Willard and a number of his ministerial neighbors and others purchased the books and made them the nucleus of a public library for Beverly. He was also one of the incorporators of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and its first corresponding secretary. Thus he performed the duties of preacher and pastor to his parishioners, and also lived a broader life in letters and general educational matters. It was not strange, therefore, that the trustees of Harvard College turned to him as a promising candidate for the vacancy occurring there, and elected him president in 1781. During his presidency the number of students in the college increased, the standards of scholarship were raised, the requirements for admission were made considerably higher, and the course of study reached a much higher plane. He was himself distinguished as a classical scholar and was eminent in mathematics, especially in astronomy.

He maintained good discipline, yet attached the students to himself. The finances of the institution also improved. In person he was stately, upright, dignified; earnest in character, he honored the position to which he had been called. He went on a journey to the Cape for his health in the autumn of 1804, and died at New Bedford on his way home, September 25, 1804.

John Willard became a physician and practiced at Middlebury, Vt., being appointed marshal of Vermont by President Jackson he gave himself to public affairs. After his third marriage he entered with all his strength into his wife's plans and co-operated with her, giving advice, and teaching in the school. He died May 25, 1825.

Mrs. Emma Hart Willard was one of the largest contributors to the advance of womanly education in the world. Ever regarding the essential delicacy and moral elevation of her sex as paramount, she maintained the ability and propriety of girls studying what boys did and acquiring as "liberal" education. With personal charms which won attention and commanded respect, she coupled untiring application; she made herself conspicuous by the excellence of her teaching at 17 years of age in Connecticut; won admiration in Middlebury, Vt., where she continued her work. Then, appealing to the New York legislature for an appropriation to aid the work, she established "Mrs. Willard's Seminary" at Troy, and made it a distinguished success. Her pupils were examined by representative committees of educators; they demonstrated her ideas and carried the sentiment abroad. The many colleges for women of the twentieth century are only carrying out what she claimed and proved.

It is not on the town records, but a matter of local tradition that Giles was a son of Peleg and Hannah and born before they removed from Connecticut. He does not appear to have resided long at Cape Elizabeth.

Children, recorded at Cape Elizabeth:

666a. i. Daniel[7], b. Oct. 27, 1785; m. at Cape Elizabeth May 26, 1817, Eliza Strout. Did he settle at Bridgton, Me.?

The town record of his birth has been written over by some person and changed from what the editor believes to have been originally 1770 to what is now black and strong, 1760. But as deeds show that Peleg Willard was living at Killingworth, Conn., at that time, and this record affirms Cape Elizabeth as the child's birthplace, the under date is the more reasonable.

Jesse Willard resided in Cape Elizabeth through his life. Was chosen to various town offices from 1800 to 1814. Many descendants have resided in that town, Portland and other adjacent places.

He died in April, 1828.

He was graduated at Harvard College in 1803; received the degree of Doctor of Divinity; was a Congregational minister, pastor of the church at Deerfield many years. When examined by a council of ministers and churches which had been convened for his ordination, he gave utterance to views at variance with those held by the orthodox churches, and the council declined to ordain him. A second council was called which contained a majority in sympathy with his views, or who were rather inclined to tolerate the "liberal" or "Unitarian" sentiments which he avowed, and they inducted him into office September 23, 1807. He was an attractive preacher and man; ardent in favor of total abstinence from intoxicants and the abolition of slavery. He wrote many books and pamphlets. Became blind in 1819, but continued his ministry till his resignation was accepted in 1829. After a short residence at Hingham he returned to Deerfield, where he died October 8, 1859.

Was elected by the citizens of Cambridge representative and afterward senator, 1833-1835. Chosen mayor of Cambridge 1848-1850. In all these varied lines of thought and activity he was successful and highly esteemed. He gave to the press in 1855 two volumes entitled "Memories of Youth and Manhood," in which he presented exceedingly interesting pictures of the men and times his life had shown him. He died December 6, 1856.

He was the author of the valuable work, "Familiar Quotations," and "The Shakespeare Concordance," in which Mrs. Bartlett gave him much assistance.

313. Joseph[6] Willard (Joseph[5], Samuel[4], John[3], Samuel[2], Simon[1]), born at Cambridge March 14, 1798; married February 24, 1830, Susanna Hickling, daughter of Isaiah and Harriet Ann Townsend (Cox) Lewis, born at Charlestown August 24, 1806, died in Boston July 31, 1869.

He graduated at Harvard College in 1816 and took the additional degree of LL.B. in due course. He practiced law at Waltham a short time, then at Lancaster. Made many friends there, and entered into the life of the town heartily. Wrote the first history of Lancaster. He removed to Boston, where he was clerk of courts for many years, performing his duties with marked ability, making himself of great value to the judges and lawyers through his extensive knowledge of law and procedure.

In his summer vacations he sometimes went to the White mountains; took many long walks and in unfrequented or unexplored places. Gaining the summit of a peak which overlooks the Notch, he was so charmed with the view that he had a path cut so that others might enjoy it; the walk grew popular and a road was opened. Mr. Crawford, the innkeeper, named the peak "Mount Willard" in his honor.

Mr. Willard's greatest work was in the history of the Willard Family. For years he was gathering materials by examining public records and corresponding with persons of the name, and so on; he brought out the principal part of his material in the book, "Willard Memoir," but continued to gather records and items throughout his life. These notes he arranged in a businesslike fashion, so that the present work has been started and carried along a good way by means of what Mr. Willard had prepared. The Willard family owe him a great debt of affection and honor. The present work does not attempt to cover the ground which he took up in his "Memoir," but simply tells the same stories in a brief and graphic way, as for a work of reference; and all the family will find great satisfaction in having and reading the extended accounts of Major Simon Willard and Mr. George Willard and others which are contained in the "Memoir."

Beside this family memorial Mr. Willard did a very fine piece of historical biography in a "Life of General Henry Knox." It is to be regretted that this work was not published.

He died May 12, 1865.

Susanna Willard

famous class of 1855, of which Phillips Brooks, Robert Treat Paine, Frank B. Sanborn and Henry L. Higginson were conspicuous members. He became a lawyer like his father. Like him he was also a student of history, and had a very wide acquaintance with books; amassed a great library and was a "walking cyclopædia"; versed in many languages, apt at quotation and remarkly astute in summoning laws, decisions, precedents and principles, so that he was valuable as a consulting attorney. He contributed articles to various law publications and edited "The American Law of Landlord and Tenant." He delivered a course of lectures at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1900 on Business Law. He was offered the position of judge of the Municipal Court of South Boston, but declined. He did good service on the Boston School Committee. He was particularly skillful in Probate matters and settlement of estates. His classmates (1855) were very fond of him and he was most true to the inner circle of family and friends. He died unm. Apr. 27, 1908.

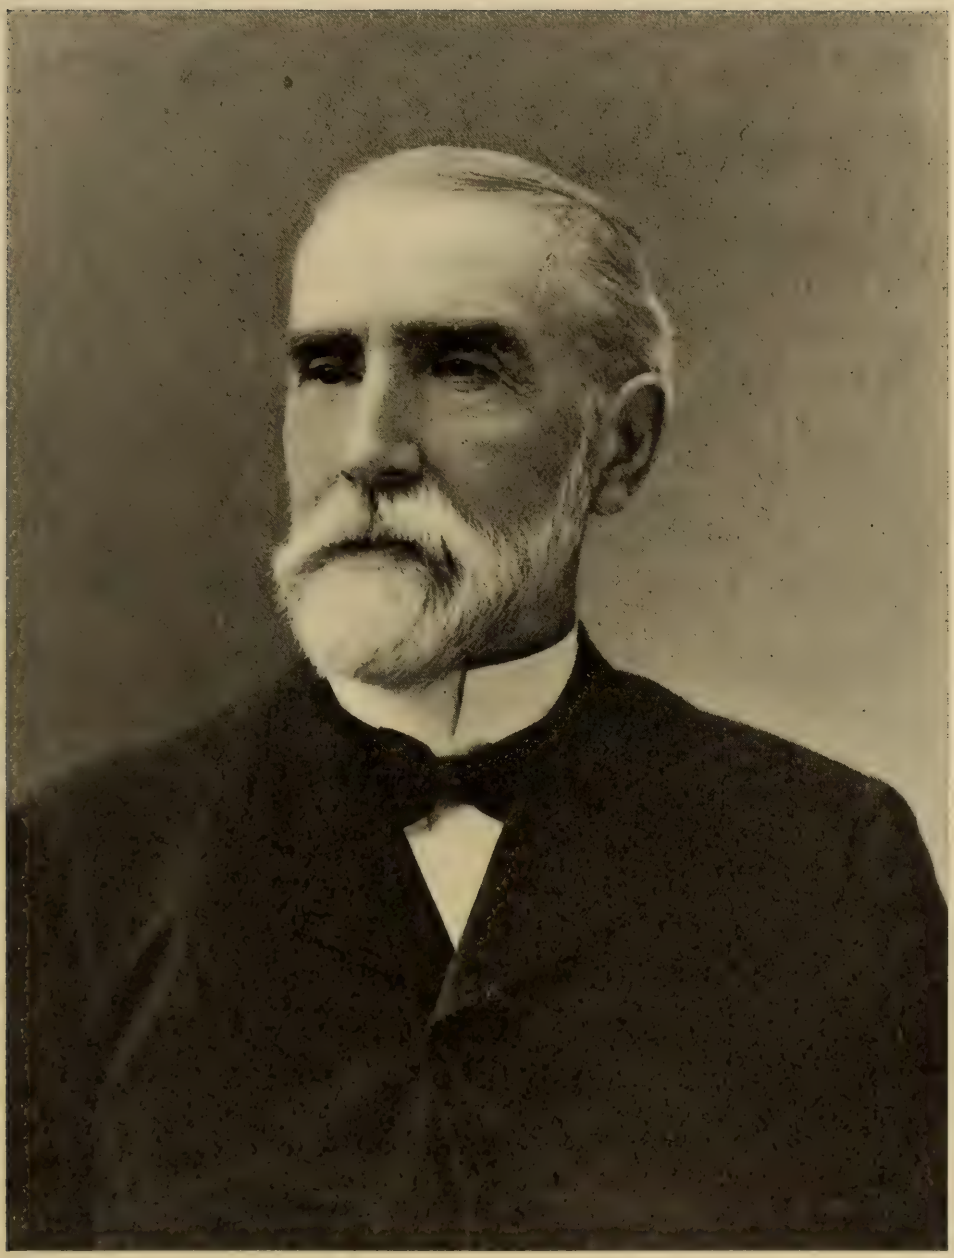
He graduated at Yale College in 1849 and at Andover Theological Seminary in 1853, taking another year of graduate work. He was ordained January 2, 1855, and installed pastor of the Congregational church of Fairhaven, where he continued in office nearly eleven years. Other pastorates of his were at Birmingham, Conn., 1869-1873; Marlborough, Mass., 1873-1880, and Decorah,



Rev. John Willard

Iowa, 1883-1891; he was without charge at Chicago, Ill., the rest of his life.

He was a frequent contributor of prose and poetry to religious papers. He wrote a description of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding, and, adding poems by himself and other members of the family written for the occasion, had the whole embodied in a book, "Mile Post Golden," which was printed for the family and friends.

The Chicago Advance said of him:

"The Rev. John Willard passed away at his home in Auburn Park, Chicago, Ill., Monday morning, December 1, 1913, at the advanced age of eighty-seven years. . . . He was a fine example of the older New England type of evangelical piety. Accurate in scholarship, a clear thinker, of superior rhetorical gifts, clear cut and strong in his religious and ethical convictions, a valued counsellor, a fearless champion of righteousness, forceful and polished in pulpit utterance, he was a Christian gentleman of the old school, and represented a type of culture and character that is all too rare. A conservative in theology, he possessed a mind singularly alert to the world of thought and life about him, while his sense of humor and readiness at happy repartee, exhibited even during his last illness, will ever be lovingly remembered by kindred and friends. Unswerving integrity and a ready and tender sympathy, united in a strong personality, characterized him as disciple and minister of Jesus Christ."

H. C. Willance
May 12, 1902

Court House, Va., died at Washington, D. C., February 14, 1871.

He went to California in the early days of the gold-mining fever, but returned in 1853 without a fortune. He was taken into full partnership with his brother, Henry Augustus, who was already prospering in the Willard Hotel in Washington, D. C., and the brothers carried on one of the finest hostelries — and perhaps the most famous — in the country. He purchased his brother's interest in the property in 1892. He lived in a quiet style; was a member of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church.

He died January 17, 1897.

1119. Henry Augustus[8] Willard (Joseph[7], Joseph[6], William[5], Joseph[4], Samuel[3], Josiah[2], Simon[1]), born at Westminster, Vt., May 14, 1822; married there November 6, 1855, Sarah Bradley, daughter of Daniel and Merab Ann (Bradley) Kellogg, born at Saxtons River, Vt., August 17, 1831. They were married in Westminster at the residence of the bride's grandfather, Hon. William C. Bradley, a member of Congress and one of the most able lawyers in Vermont. She took her place in Washington, D. C., in quiet, home life and also in benevolent work. Garfield Memorial Hospital and the Industrial Home School were among the avenues through which she poured the "precious ointment" of her unselfish life. Well educated herself, she went over the lessons of her son in his preparatory school with him, and gave him daily letters during his college years. She died November 3, 1909.

Mr. Willard had a remarkable career as a maker of what has sometimes been called "A home from home." After childhood in common school and Walpole Academy he helped a little while in a country store at Bellows Falls, Vt.; was night clerk in Chase's Hotel, Brattleboro, Vt.;

then steward on a Hudson River steamboat; in connection with this he carried packages of money from banks at Troy to those in New York City. Through a chance acquaintance on the steamboat he was led to embark on the enterprise of leasing and running the "City Hotel" in Washington, D. C., in October, 1847. He changed the name in due time to "Willard's Hotel," which he soon made famous. After five years he invited his brother, Joseph Clapp Willard, to join him as an equal partner, though without capital, and the two operated together until July, 1861, when they leased the establishment to Sykes, Chadwick & Co., and enjoyed income and leisure. Several years he resided at Hudson, N. Y., part or all of the year; but for the most of his long life he lived in Washington. There he renewed his active business life. He helped organize the National Savings and Trust Company, and was its second president. He organized the Columbia Fire Insurance Company, of which he was president and his son, secretary. He built the fine Willard and Kellogg office buildings; continued to look after details until after he was eighty years old. He found time to make a collection of autographs of a remarkable character, containing autograph letters of all the signers of the Declaration of Independence save one. Mr. Willard was a very strong supporter of the First Unitarian Church and later of All Souls' Church, contributing very largely to the erection of its fine house of worship.

He was heartily loyal to the Union cause in the Civil War, and kept the Stars and Stripes flying from his hotel even when the flag was nowhere else seen in the city except on Government buildings. Was a great friend of soldiers.

Mr. Willard was an active helper of Governor Shepherd in bringing about the transformation of Washington, which, when he went to it, was an ill-assorted, rambling town with wretched streets, filthy, undrained, unwholesome. Through the magnificent plans and tireless energy of Shepherd, Willard and a few others the present city came into being, the pride of America and the admiration of the world.

Mr. Willard was concerned in the street railway, local banking institutions, life insurance, telephone and other enterprises, and was a liberal giver to the needy.

He went with the body of his wife to his native town, Westminster, Vt., early in November, intending to return. Early in December he was taken ill, and died at the summer residence of his son in Walpole, N. H., December 4, 1909.

We refer with pleasure to the book, "Willard-Bradley Memoirs," by the son, Henry Kellogg Willard, A.B., LL.B., for many more particulars respecting this family.

Jones, born August 19, 1836, died June 9, 1874. He married second, Lucy Stratton Parker, born August 3, 1843, died January 12, 1910.

He went to Washington, D. C., as a young man and learned the hotel business, showing himself an apt pupil of his brother Henry, who loaned him $40,000 with which to begin hotel keeping. He repaid it after some years, and made the Ebbitt Hotel famous, in the same class as "The Willard," and acquired large property.

William Augustus and Emma (Wagener) Porter, born April 6, 1847.

He graduated from the high school in 1863 and entered Yale College; a defect of the eyes compelled him to abandon the course and he limited his studies to medicine and surgery; studied at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, one year, then entered the University of Pennsylvania. He left college and worked in the U. S. Sanitary Commission and had large practical experience till the close of the war. He graduated M.D. in 1867 and entered upon practice in Philadelphia. The death of his brother Dwight Daniel drew heavily on his sympathies and he devoted his energies, in co-operation with his brother Charles Levi, to the carrying on of the great business enterprise which had been so suddenly deprived of its manager, and to the five little ones now orphaned. After years of this double work he was free to expand and push to success his medical and surgical work. He was peculiarly eminent in orthopædic surgery, in which he was made professor by the University of Pennsylvania in 1903; his work for crippled children was remarkable. By the patronage of P. A. B. Widener he developed a training school for crippled children, a magnificent charity. He was surgeon of the Presbyterian Hospital for twenty-five years. Was of great assistance in the development of her daughter and a competent adviser for her even in the years of the daughter's great distinction and immense responsibilities.

Mr. Willard was a man of mental alertness and had a heart full of interest in all humane and religious affairs. He taught school some; though a farmer he took time for wide reading and made himself an authority in his community on agriculture and horticulture. He lived some time at Churchville, near Rochester, N. Y., spent four years at Oberlin, in which he studied what would make up for the deficiencies of early life; removed to Forest Home, near Janesville, Wis. His strong sense, combined with deep faith and fervent enthusiasm, made him an ideal father for the training of his children to make their mark in the kingdom of righteousness. He died when on a visit to his old home at Churchville, N. Y., January 24, 1868.

v. Mary, b. in 1843; lived a sweet, aspiring life, memorialized by her sister in the book, "Nineteen Beautiful Years." She d. June 8, 1862.

FRANCES ELIZABETH WILLARD, as she wrote her name, was one of the most famous and useful women of our American history. Her statue in the rotunda of our national capitol marks her immense hold on the respect of the State of Illinois, which placed it there, and the country at large whose Congress accepted the gift in the name of the whole people.

She inherited fine traits from both parents and did credit to her ancestry. She was like most children in play and impulsive qualities which led her into various little experiences along her childhood and youth; but early pledged herself to God and the Good, and never went astray. District school and boarding school did for her what they may do for any earnest child and young woman. She was a teacher at an early age and preceptress in more than one institution, culminating in the position of Dean of Women in the North Western University at Evanston, near Chicago, in 1871. Three years she maintained herself in that position with credit; then a clash occurred between her and the faculty of the University as to the manner in which the student-life of young women should be guarded and restricted by their dean and her lady associates. Much as she desired the enlarging of woman's sphere she felt a deep sense of the delicacy and sacredness of the sex which made her opposed to anything which she believed would abandon young women at a critical period of their development to unrestricted and unchaperoned association with young men in the institution. She was over-ruled and resigned. That circumstance gave her time to attend to the great Women's Crusade against intoxicants; and she found in that cause what her whole being felt was paramount in social affairs. Her soul was aroused against "the three curses, narcotic poisons (alcohol and nicotine); the curse of gambling; the curse of social sin, deadlier than all; these three part and parcel of each other." She spoke in Chicago and gained admirers; she spoke in Boston along with the Evangelist Moody and gained still more popularity; she spoke at Portland, Me., learned the history of the grand work which had been done there for years and came under the influence of Mrs. Stevens, and her life-work was mapped out! Her work is described very fully in her own autobiography, and in Miss Gordon's memorial volume. One circumstance which contributed largely to Miss Willard's preparation for her work as the leader of women's work was her two years' sojourn and travel abroad, in 1868 to 1870, in company with her teacher-associate, Miss Kate Jackson, whose father generously paid all the expenses of the pair. When Miss Willard went abroad afterward in her lecture tour she was far more successful for that former life abroad.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union grew in its membership and enlarged the scope of its work through her official service. All its departments felt the influence of her personality. Throughout the Northern and Southern States alike she carried her banner and gained adherents for the overthrow of the tyrant alcohol. The progress of the cause of prohibition since her death is in part the fruit of her magnificent work. As a speaker she was one of the finest of her sex. A lawyer in Chicago who had come under the power of the deadly thirst was asked if Miss Willard was a large woman, and replied: "I should think her about eight feet high and weighing about 400 pounds; but when she was wooing my heart to a better life I thought and think now she was the sweetest little being in the world." As a matter of fact Miss Willard was less than the average in height and weight, but had poise and dignity with persuasive manner that showed a soul aroused.

She died February 18, 1898.

Ide, a member of the Commission to establish civil government in the Philippine Islands, recommended him as a suitable person for an associate judge of the Supreme Court of the Islands, and he was appointed in 1901. DANIEL[9] WILLARD (Daniel S.[8], James N.[7], John S.[6], James N.[5], Moses[4], Simon[3], Henry[2], Simon[1]), born at Hartland, Vt., January 28, 1861; married at North Troy, Vt., March 2, 1885, Bertha Leone, daughter of Oscar H. and Mary Ann (Grimes) Elkins, born November 26, 1863.

Daniel Willard has "made his mark" most effectively. The son of a farmer in moderate circumstances, he studied at the district schools till fifteen years of age, when he passed the examination for teachers and taught one winter; then took the course in the high school of Windsor, the adjoining town. He entered the Massachusetts Agricultural College, but a serious eye trouble compelled him to abandon the course. Then his father's offer of land could not satisfy him, but he went to work for the Central Vermont Railroad as a laborer; next a fireman on a locomotive, and in due time an engineer; going west he worked for the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern and the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie, rising in the service of the latter road to the position of division superintendent. In 1899 he was assistant general manager of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and after two years went to the Erie as assistant to the president, and then as general manager. In 1904 he was second vice-president and in charge of the operating and maintenance departments of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad; and in 1910 he was called to the presidency of the Baltimore and Ohio.

He has shown practical sense all along this course of service and promotion, ability to meet problems and sagacity in foreseeing the important things to be done. He was the representative of fifty-two railroads of the northeastern part of the United States on the arbitration board, which adjusted the differences between those roads and their locomotive engineers in the spring of 1912. He has twice been president of the American Railway Association, and was selected by his colleagues to make the presentation of their need of more liberal treatment by the National Government at the hearing in 1914. Johns Hopkins University conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Laws as "a man of affairs, the head of a great railroad system . . . employing his power so wisely as not only to have demonstrated the possession of superior intellectual ability, useful learning and knowledge of the highest order, but to have made a contribution to the proper handling of the transportation problem, equal in its beneficent results to the contributions that have won distinction for learned men in the fields of science and literature."
